WoodPellets.com Commends Governor Lynch on Responsiveness to Manufacturers' Feedback

Goffstown, NH - Governor Lynch today announced a partnership between the State of New Hampshire and MFG.com, to help drive local economic development in manufacturing.

WoodPellets.com joins with other NH businesses in commending the Governor and Commissioner Bald of the Department of Resources and Economic Development on this important achievement. "It is great to see the Governor and state officials acting so quickly in response to a suggestion from the business community" commented Jon Strimling, President of www.WoodPellets.com.

Less than a year ago, Mr. Strimling attended a "Governor's Round Table on Business" where opportunities to improve communication and collaboration within the state were discussed. Several of the participants commented that it would be useful to have an online marketplace where businesses could interact.

Commissioner Bald, Roy Duddy and their team moved quickly to solidify a partnership with MFG.COM and then to implement this system. "It is one thing to see government officials holding round-tables and listening to the business community" continued Mr. Strimling, "But what was infinitely more impressive was to see how quickly they acted on our suggestions."

Mr. Strimling concluded, "We've always appreciated the business-friendly policies of New Hampshire. Today we commend the Lynch administration on being the first state in the country to adopt such a sophisticated marketplace for growing local manufacturing businesses."
